FALL of 1926

INTERNATIONAL
PUBLISHERS
381 FOURTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

We present here a complete record of the books we have issued. In keeping with our plans, a majority of the titles introduce foreign authors of high repute in the fields of the novel, biography, literature and art, and the social sciences. Our program contemplates, besides important American books, further contributions from foreign sources of similar significant works. We feel that there is a sufficient number of readers interested in the kind of books presented in this catalog to justify their American publication. We invite the names and addresses of interested readers and their friends, for the purpose of sending them the advance information we will issue from time to time.

MRS. SOCRATES

By FRITZ MAUTHNER

BETTER known in Germany as a dramatic critic and a philosopher of language, Fritz Mauthner nevertheless has several novels to his credit. In Mrs. Socrates, he attempts a defense of the most notorious scold in history. Neglecting even so much as a pretense of the historical drapery so disturbingly evident in the conventional historical novel, Mauthner presents a moving picture of the devotion of a simple-minded woman to an intellectual epicure whose mind she is entirely unable to understand and whose mental gymnastics are a source of much woe to her. Socrates, himself the victim of his rectitude and frankness, is also depicted in a manner that reveals the tragic element necessarily involved in the search for the truth. Translated from the German. 12mo. $2.00.

THE MEMOIRS OF VERA FIGNER

LOOKING over three generations, Vera Figner reviews her eventful life in a series of vivid tableaux, tracing the evolution of the aristocratic Russian girl into a leader of the Terrorists, whose activities culminated in the assasination of Czar Alexander II in 1881. She tells of her arrest, her death verdict which was commuted to life imprisonment in the Schluesselburg fortress, and those twenty-three years of solitary confinement which failed to break her body or dim her spirit. It is a finely drawn picture of sacrifice and struggle, of ascents to the heights of immortality, of descents into the hell of suffering. Today, at the age of seventy-five, Vera Figner is a living embodiment of Russia's womanhood, strong of will, pure of heart and noble of purpose. Large 12mo. Translated from the Russian. Probably $2.50.

THE WOMAN WORKER AND THE TRADE UNIONS

By THERESA WOLFSON

THE author, active in educational work of trade unions, sheds an understanding light upon the condition of women who work. She discusses their permanency as a wage-earning group, their racial and cultural background, the nature of their tasks, and the official policy of the trade unions in regards to them as union members. She considers the extent of their organization and their participation in union life—in strikes, union meetings, as shop chairmen and organizers, and their place on wage boards and price committees. A discussion of the question of trade union organization and activities as against special protective legislation for women workers is also presented in this book. 12mo. $1.75.

THOMAS MORE AND HIS UTOPIA

By KARL KAUTSKY

IN A vivid and sympathetic account, Kautsky traces the life and work of this most famous of Utopians. He investigates More's background, his youth, his development, and the political and religious forces which lay back of his opposition to the Lutheran Reformation. The book is a human document of a man who, although a monarchist, hated tyranny; of a man who, with all his dreaming, still had a keen sense of humor—one, indeed, that he carried to the very block upon which he was executed. The book contains a critical examination of More's Utopia. Translated from the German. 12mo. Probably $2.50.

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS

By D. RIASANOV

PROFESSOR RIASANOV, Director of the Marx-Engels Institute in Moscow, uses Marx's own method in a searching analysis of the time in which the founders of scientific socialism lived and worked. The outstanding literary collaboration in history is presented for the first time in this unusual study of the theories and practical achievements of Marx and Engels. Translated from the Russian. Large 12mo. $2.50.

THE EIGHTEENTH BRUMAIRE OF LOUIS BONAPARTE

By KARL MARX

THE opening words of this book are, "Hegel says somewhere that, upon the stage of universal history, all great events and personalities reappear in one fashion or another. He forgot to add that on the first occasion they appear as tragedy; on the second, as farce." It was in the light of that conception that Marx called his book "The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Bonaparte." Napoleon the Little was the farcical reproduction of Napoleon the Great. The coup d'état of December 2, 1851, was the farcical reproduction of the coup d'état of the Eighteenth Brumaire in the Year VIII (November 9, 1799).

Originally published in the United States in 1852, Marx's brilliant essay now appears in a new and striking translation from the German. The book is enriched by a chronological table of events in French revolutionary history from 1789 to 1871. A glossary of terms, names and dates used in the book, is a valuable addition.

COLLECTED WORKS

Of N. LENIN

The Lenin Institute in Moscow is preparing for publication a definitive edition of Lenin's writings in twenty-five volumes. International Publishers will offer in an authorized English translation a selected number of the most important works in this series. The first to be issued are:

WAR AND REVOLUTION

THE boom of the first cannon which opened the World War had barely died away, when Lenin was already writing on what should be Labor's attitude towards the war. In a series of articles and essays written between 1914 and 1917, he subjected to a searching criticism the action of the labor elements who supported the war, and called upon the Russian Bolsheviks as well as the socialists of other warring countries to turn the war between nations into a war between classes. Besides the development of this basic theme, the volume includes important contributions on nationalism, a United States of Europe, a separate peace, self-determination, disarmament, etc. Lenin's writings during this period help to understand the ideological background of the Russian Revolution.

8vo. Probably $3.00.

MATERIALISM AND CRITICAL EMPIRICISM

AFTER the Russian Revolution of 1905, a number of outstanding revolutionary figures exhibited a friendly attitude towards the empirical and positivist schools of philosophy. Lenin, sensing the danger of such a departure from materialism—the philosophic foundation of socialism—launched an attack against Mach, Avenarius, Poincaré and other exponents of empiricism. In a merciless polemic he dubs their philosophy reactionary and gives a lucid exposition of dialectic materialism and its relation to other systems of philosophy.

8vo. Probably $3.00.

ALBERT SHAW LECTURES ON DIPLOMATIC HISTORY.

1899. John H. Latané. The Diplomatic Relations of the United States and Spanish America. 1900. (Out of print.)

1900. James Morton Callahan. The Diplomatic History of the Southern Confederacy. 1901. (Out of print.)

1906. Jesse Siddall Reeves. American Diplomacy Under Tyler and Polk. 1907. 335 pages. 12 mo. $1.75.

This volume discusses the Northeastern Boundary Controversy; the Ashburton Treaty; the Relations between Mexico and the United States, 1825-1843; the Annexation of Texas; the Northwestern Boundary Controversy; the Oregon Treaty; Polk's attempted Negotiation for California; the Outbreak of the Mexican War; the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

1907. Elbert Jay Benton. International Law and Diplomacy of the Spanish-American War. 1908. 300 pp. 12 mo. $1.75.

Among the topics discussed are: Cuba and National Policy; American Neutrality, 1895-1897; Abandonment of Non-Intervention Policy; Intervention; Transition from Neutrality to Belligerency; Relations of the Belligerents; Relations between Belligerents and Neutrals; Negotiations of Belligerents during War; Restoration of Peace; Interpretation and Fulfilment of Treaty of Peace.

1909. Ephraim Douglas Adams. British Interests and Activities in Texas, 1838-1846. 1910. 276 pp. 12 mo. $1.75.

This work is the result of extended research in the diplomatic archives of this country and of Great Britain. The author throws new and interesting light on the attitude of the English government toward Mexico, Texas, and the United States during the agitation for Texan independence and annexation. The book is a valuable contribution to the diplomatic questions discussed in part in the previous volume by Reeves on American Diplomacy under Tyler and Polk.

1911. Charles Oscar Paullin. Diplomatic Negotiations of American Naval Officers, 1778-1883. 1912. 380 pp. 12 mo. $2.25.

This work presents a brief but comprehensive study of the service of the navy in the field of diplomacy, from John Paul Jones to Rear-Admiral Schufeldt. The naval officer as a diplomat was distinguished for simplicity, candor, and directness, and as his negotiations were for the most part with far distant oriental peoples, he was often the first to establish permanent relations with the United States.

1912. Isaac J. Cox. The West Florida Controversy, 1798-1813. 1918. 702 pp. 12 mo. $3.00.

The subject involves one of the most intricate problems in American history, and Professor Cox has spared no pains in searching for new sources of information. He has not only availed himself of the collections in Washington and of the material in the Department of Archives and History at Jackson, Mississippi, but he has personally searched the archives at Seville and Madrid.

1913. William R. Manning. Early Diplomatic Relations Between the United States and Mexico. 1916. 418 pp. 12 mo. $2.50.

The writer shows in an interesting way how the British took advantage of our delay in establishing a permanent representative at the Mexican capital to promote British influence over the Mexican government, and how Poinsett's efforts to recover prestige for his government involved him in difficulties and in charges of intermeddling in the internal affairs of the country. The suspicions thus aroused, together with Poinsett's connection with the York Masons, thwarted his efforts to bring to a successful conclusion the treaty negotiations with which he was charged.

1914. Frank A. Updyke. The Diplomacy of the War of 1812. 1915. 504 pp. 12 mo. $2.75.

Then, as now, the United States was the principal neutral power in a war which involved all Europe. The causes of the War of 1812 are clearly set forth. The Treaty of Ghent, the hundredth anniversary of which has recently been celebrated, is the central theme of the latter half of the volume. The negotiations leading to the signing of that treaty are clearly described. The terms of the treaty are examined as well as the questions in dispute which were omitted, and which continued to disturb the relations of the two countries for many years.

1916. Payson Jackson Treat. The Early Diplomatic Relations Between United States and Japan, 1853-1865. 1917. 468 pp. 12 mo. $2.75.

This volume begins with Perry's romantic visit to Japan, and covers in detail the treaty negotiations so ably conducted by the first representatives of the United States, Townsend Harris and Robert H. Pruyn, concluding with the Mikado's sanction of the treaties in 1865. It is a story of absorbing interest told in admirable style.

1921. Percy Alvin Martin. Latin America and the War. 1925. 594 pp. 12 mo. $3.50.

The author is a well known student and writer in the Latin-American field, and he has had access to a vast number of contemporary documents, journals and newspapers published in the various states included within the scope of the volume. Of the twenty Latin-American republics, eight declared war on Germany, five severed relations without declaring war, and seven remained neutral. Pan Hispanism and Yankeephobia each played its part in preventing a realization of that solidarity which has been the aim of Pan-Americanism. The author describes in some detail the reactions to the World War in each of the American republics, and draws a number of interesting conclusions in the final chapter. Among them may be mentioned the increased dependence on their own resources and initiative, the development of trade between the different republics, and the extension of financial and commercial relations with the United States.

THE HAGUE PEACE CONFERENCES OF 1899 AND 1907.

By JAMES BROWN SCOTT.

Solicitor for the Department of State and Technical Delegate to the Second Conference.

Two volumes. 8vo. Price, $7.00.

Vol. I. The Conferences, 887 pages. Vol. II. Documents, 548 pages.

These two substantial volumes furnish the most complete account of the Conferences which has appeared in English, and will undoubtedly be accepted as the definitive account of the work of those two great gatherings. The fact that the author was the Technical Delegate of the United States to the Second Conference and played a conspicuous part in its deliberations adds to the authoritative value of the treatise.

FOUR PHASES OF AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT.

FEDERALISM—DEMOCRACY—IMPERIALISM—EXPANSION.

By JOHN BASSETT MOORE.

218 pages. Crown 8vo. Price, $1.50.

The lectures embraced in this volume are designed to sketch in clear and vivid outline the great movements by which the historical development of the United States is distinguished and to indicate the causes to which they were due. The order in which the several topics are discussed is not intended to denote a strict chronological succession; hence they are described as phases rather than as stages of development.

CHINA—AN ANALYSIS.

By FRANK J. GOODNOW.

298 pages. 12 mo. $2.00.

The author has attempted to picture Chinese life against a European background. The contrast of what have appeared to him to be the salient features of Occidental and Oriental Civilization has helped him to reach conclusions which he ventures to believe are correct with regard to the Chinese problem. It is hoped that this contrast will have the same effect in helping those who read the book in their understanding of a subject which cannot be said to be generally well understood. The volume embraces eight chapters: Physical Characteristics and Origins, Economic, Intellectual, Philosophical, Social, Political, Modern and Future China.

AMERICAN RELATIONS WITH CHINA.

198 pages. Octavo. Paper, $1.00. Cloth, $1.50.

This book is a result of a unique attempt by American citizens to understand their responsibilities to China. Two hundred leaders of organizations formed themselves into a study group, engaged the help of experts, and finally came together for a conference. The fruits of this study and discussion have been brought together in a handy volume, which, with its index and bibliography of books and significant periodical articles, will prove invaluable to every one who is watching the progress of the conferences on customs autonomy and extraterritoriality at Peking.

CHINA AT THE CONFERENCE.

By W. W. WILLOUGHBY.

435 pages. 8vo. $3.00.

Besides chapters explaining the reasons for the discussion by the Powers of the political and international situation in the Far East, describing the organization and procedure of the Conference, and estimating its results, there are chapters dealing severally with each of the important subjects discussed in the Conference and regarding which Treaties or Resolutions were adopted. In an Appendix the texts are given of these important documents.

OPIUM AS AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM: THE GENEVA CONFERENCES.

By W. W. WILLOUGHBY.

601 pages. 8vo. Price $4.50.

This volume, in the nature of a semi-official report, presents, in a comprehensive manner, the fact leading up to the calling of the two Opium Conferences at Geneva, the discussions had in those Conferences and the results reached. The work will be indispensable to all those interested in combating, by international co-operative action, the widespread evils resulting from the abuse of opium and other narcotic habit-forming drugs. To students of international relations the volume will be of especial interest, giving as it does a detailed account of Conferences held under the auspices of the League of Nations and in which the United States Government was officially represented.

THE INTERNATIONAL OPIUM CONFERENCES AT GENEVA:

Statements of the Chinese Delegation.

172 pages. 12 mo. $1.50.

In this volume, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze who was the head of the Chinese Delegation to the two Conferences, has gathered together all the formal statements made by the Delegations and thus presents in complete, definite and authentic form the views of the Chinese Government with regard to the international problem of regulating the traffic in narcotic habit-forming drugs and controlling the production of the raw materials from which these drugs are manufactured. The statements included in the volume are grouped under appropriate topical heads, and thus enable the reader to obtain an easy comprehension of the character and scope of the general problem. Students of this problem will undoubtedly find it a great convenience to have the views and arguments of the Chinese Government thus authentically and comprehensively presented in a single and compact volume.

ADDRESSES

By His Excellency SAO-KE ALFRED SZE, LL.D,
Chinese Minister to the United States.

142 pages. 12 mo. $1.25.

This volume contains five addresses delivered to various audiences by Dr. Sze during the winter of 1925-1926. Dealing, as they do, with a frank and fundamental manner with the present political situation of China, and with the international problems arising out of that situation, these addresses cannot but be of great value to all persons interested in Far Eastern politics. The titles given to the addresses will indicate their scope and some of the topics dealt with: I. The Problem of China; II. The Causes of China's Discontent: How They May Be Removed; III. International Aspects of the Chinese Situation; IV. Extraterritoriality in China. V. China's Unequal Treaties.

THE CREED OF THE OLD SOUTH.

By BASIL L. GILDERSLEEVE.

128 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.25.

The author in the last score of years has often been urged by his friends and sympathizers to reprint his article issued under this title in 1892, and which attracted wider attention than anything he has ever written. In this volume there is now published, in more accessible form, the author's record of views and impressions that may seem strange even to the survivors of that conflict. There is also included an essay on a cognate theme "A Southerner in the Peloponnesian War" which appeared in 1897.

WORKING MANUAL OF ORIGINAL SOURCES IN AMERICAN GOVERNMENT.

By MILTON CONOVER.

144 pages. 8vo. $1.50.

Essentially a project working manual, it aims primarily to correlate government documents with textbooks as an introduction to the whole field of American Politics; to cultivate a citizen's interest in the realities of political science; and, to utilize the adolescent instincts for creative activity as rapidly as they become stimulated by lectures and readings. Its eighteen chapters involve Farrand's Records of the Federal Convention, Elliot's Debates, The Federalist; Messages of the Presidents; Annual Administrative Reports; the Congressional Directory, Record, Reports, Hearings, and Documents; Statutes at Large and Supreme Court cases that have been discussed in leading textbooks; Proceedings of the National Party Conventions; editorials of ranking newspapers, magazines, and scientific journals; and official documents of State and local governments.

WORKING MANUAL OF CIVICS.

By MILTON CONOVER.

80 pages. 8 vo. Paper, 75 cents; Cloth, $1.00.

This problem book aims to lead the beginning student into the practice of active citizenship. All of the data necessary for the projects may be obtained from the agencies indicated at the beginning of each chapter. Each exercise is adaptable to local needs, whether they be those of the lone student heretofore without a library, or those of the socialized classes of high schools and junior colleges, having access to city libraries. In principle the system is precisely that of the author's Working Manual of Original Sources in American Government which is being used in colleges and universities.

DISTURBING ELEMENTS IN THE STUDY AND TEACHING OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

By JAMES BONAR.

156 pages. 8vo. Price, $1.00.

This volume consists of five lectures delivered at the Johns Hopkins University in the spring of 1910. As the title suggests, the lectures are discourses not on economic error in general, but on the more subtle fallacies which are apt to invade the reasoning of trained economists in spite of learning and discipline. The lectures are distinguished by the scholarly tone and philosophical breadth that characterize Dr. Bonar's writings.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP AND ECONOMIC WELFARE.

By JACOB H. HOLLANDER.

132 pages. 16mo. $1.25.

This volume gives a frank review of the current obligations of the citizen (a) as producer, (b) as employer and (c) as taxpayer. The critical quality of the immediate economic situation is recognized, and an earnest attempt is made to point out how the ordinary citizen of the United States, animated neither by ill-balanced radicalism nor by stolid resistance to change, can at this juncture of affairs and within the range of his normal activities render the largest service to his country and his fellow-men.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE INSTITUTE FOR GOVERNMENT RESEARCH WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Institute for Government Research is an association of citizens for co-operating with public officials in the scientific study of government with a view to promoting efficiency and economy in its operations and advancing the science of administration. It aims to bring into existence such information and materials as will aid in the formation of public opinion and will assist officials, particularly those of the National Government, in their efforts to put the public administration upon a more efficient basis.

To this end it seeks, by the thoroughgoing study and examination of the best administrative practices, public and private, American and foreign, to formulate those principles which lie at the basis of all sound administration, and to determine their proper adaptation to the specific needs of our public administration.

THE LIFE AND STORIES OF THE JAINA SAVIOR PĀRCVANĀTHA.

By MAURICE BLOOMFIELD.

266 pages. Octavo. Cloth, $3.00.

This work contains the fullest extant account of the Jaina Savior Pārçvanātha's life, preceded by nine pre-births, all treated with the care of a chronicle of real life and with the sincerity of devout belief. With this life are interwoven a large number of stories illustrating Jaina morality and doctrine. The Jainas are, perhaps, the best story-tellers of India; the present volume adds to the chain of Hindu fiction books a jewel of no mean price. This work should arrest the attention of students of Comparative Literature and Folklore as well as students of the History of Religion.

THE DEEDS OF AUGUSTUS AS RECORDED ON THE MONUMENTUM ANTIOCHENUM (with seven plates).

By DAVID M. ROBINSON.

Reprinted from American Journal of Philology, vol. XLVII, 1.

54 pages. 8 vo. Paper, $1.25; Cloth, $1.75.

This monograph gives with detailed commentary a complete new Latin text of the "Queen of Inscriptions," the most important historical inscription of the Latin Empire. Many new readings have been made possible by the 250 new fragments discovered in the University of Michigan excavations at Pisidian Antioch. Some of these new fragments enable us for the first time to make a restoration of chapters 7 and 8. Others give different readings from any previously proposed.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY STUDIES IN ARCHAEOLOGY.

No. 1. THE ROMAN TOGA.

By LILLIAN M. WILSON.

132 pages. 102 Illustrations. $5.00.

This volume gives a connected history of the Roman Toga, as read from the monuments and from Latin literature, from the date of the earliest extant representations of it in the art of the Republican period, down to the last days of Roman authority in the Byzantine capital. Among the outstanding features of the book are the following:

1. Diagrams of drawings giving the shape of each form of toga, and schedules of measurements and proportions referring to these diagrams. 2. Each form of the toga and the process of draping are illustrated on the living model and fully explained in the text. The volume contains 102 illustrations, and over 40 of these are of the living models. 3. The book contains practical suggestions to teachers and students regarding the making of the toga, materials that may be successfully used, color, etc.

THE ECLOGUES OF BAPTISTA MANTUANUS.

Edited with Introduction and Notes.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

156 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The text is based upon that of the first printed edition, of Mantua, 1498. The Introduction treats of the life of Mantuan, his family and friends, his works, his popularity, the wide use of his Eclogues as a school-book, and their influence upon Sixteenth Century literature. The Notes are mainly devoted to the poet's use of his great classical models.

THE PISCATORY ECLOGUES OF JACOPO SANNAZARO.

Edited with Introduction and Notes.

By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

94 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.25.

These Latin Poems are very clever imitations, or adaptations, of some of Virgil's Bucolics. The Virgilian conventions are so far modified that the pastoral eclogue becomes a piscatory eclogue, or an idyl of fishermen. The singers are no longer shepherds, but fishermen, and the scene is no longer Sicily, or Acadia, but the Bay of Naples.

THE ECLOGUES OF FAUSTUS ANDRELINUS AND JOANNES ARNOLLETUS.

Edited with Introduction and Notes.
By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.
123 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The name of Faustus Andrelinus is less familiar than that of either "good old Mantuan" or Sannazaro; he never enjoyed the fame and the influence of the one, he never approached the high poetic plane of the other. And yet in his own day and generation he was a very important personage. One of the Italian scholars who helped to spread the New Learning in France, professor for many years in the University of Paris, the intimate friend of Erasmus, the special protégé of the King and Queen—diu regnavit Lutetiæ. His Eclogues are always readable, because they contain a certain amount of autobiography, and reflect many of his own experiences in Italy and France. They are interesting because of their "moral" tone, with occasional bits of proverbial wisdom and frequent echoes of the great Roman Satirists. And they hold an important place in the tradition of the Pastoral, because of their frequent imitation of Calpurnius and Nemesianus—at a time when these two poets were not very widely read.

THE ECLOGUES OF ANTONIO GERALDINI.

Edited with Introduction and Notes.
By WILFRED P. MUSTARD.
84 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

"The main subject of the poems is the story of the Life of Christ. The last three deal with the Apostles' Creed, the Last Judgment, and the Life of the Blessed in the Hereafter. One interesting feature is their free use of the language and imagery of Ovid."

MARTIAL, THE EPIGRAMMATIST, AND OTHER ESSAYS.

SIR THOMAS MORE AND OTHER VERSE.

By CAROL WIGHT.
116 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The publication of the verse included in this volume is in part an outgrowth of the activities of the Kottabos Club, a small circle of men associated in one way or another with the Johns Hopkins University and Goucher College who meet periodically to share their literary interests. To this group of friendly critics many of Dr. Wight's poems and stories, since published in the Atlantic Monthly, in The Johns Hopkins Alumni Magazine, and in other periodicals, were first offered; and it is largely to gratify their desire to see them given a permanent form and a wider circle of readers that this collection has been made. Contents: Sir Thomas More, A Tragedy; Fog; In Port; Sea Pines; Shipwreck; The Derelict; Night and Day; The Sextant, A Ballad; The Casting of the Screw; Kepler's Death; Edward H. Spieker: In Memoriam; Kirby Flower Smith: In Memoriam; To Basil L. Gildersleeve, Sestina; To Revere Osler, Sestina; Drowned, Sestina; Eternity, Sestina; The Prophet (Woodrow Wilson); Pantheism; Fixed Stars; Days That are Dead; Violets; The Wild Rose; Mignon, from Goethe; The Broken Vase, from Sully Prudhomme; At the Tomb of His Brother, from Catullus; My Wallflower, from the Norwegian of Wergeland.

Edited, with Introduction, Notes, and Glossarial Index.
By WILLIAM HAND BROWNE.
164 pages. 8vo. $1.50.

The objects of the editor have been: First, to present a carefully edited and elucidated text of one of the most interesting works of the Scottish literary period, which, by the purity of the language and attractiveness of the story, is especially suitable for students. Secondly, in the historic and linguistic Introduction, to furnish a succinct introduction to the whole Scottish literary period.

This introduction to the Theory of Relativity is intended for readers possessing a sound knowledge of Algebra and Calculus. The general subject of Vector (or Tensor) Analysis is introduced in a natural and somewhat novel manner. The author hopes "to make it clear that the methods of the 'Mathematics of Relativity' are applicable to, and necessary for, Theoretical Physics in general and will abide even if the Theory of Relativity has to take its place with the rejected physical theories of the past."

TABLES OF $\sqrt{1-r^2}$ AND $1-r^2$ FOR USE IN PARTIAL CORRELATION AND IN TRIGONOMETRY.

By JOHN RICE MINER.

50 pages. 8vo. Paper covers $1.00; cloth $1.50.

These tables fill a want long felt by practical workers in all branches of statistics. Everyone who uses the method of correlation has wished for tables from which the probable error of a coefficient of correlation could be obtained with accuracy. Similar tables to this have existed on a small scale, but never before have there been available tables of $1-r^2$ and $\sqrt{1-r^2}$ to 6 places of decimals, and 4 places in the argument.

PHOTOGRAPHIC MAPS OF THE NORMAL SOLAR SPECTRUM.

Made by HENRY A. ROWLAND.

Set of ten plates, $30.00.

These consist of ten plates, each 3 x 2 feet, containing two strips of the spectrum, and extending from wave length 3000 to wave length 6950. Concave gratings having 10,000 to 20,000 lines to the inch were used in making these photographs. Two photographs have been made of the B and D lines. The latter are 3 inches apart, and the former has an extent of about 24 inches. Four enlargements of some of the carbon bands from the arc electric light have also been made. These photographs will be sold for $3.00 each.

A BOOK OF PORTRAITS OF THE FACULTY OF THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY.

By DORIS ULMANN.

Containing thirty-seven photographs, reproduced in photogravure on English hand-made paper, 10½x15½ inches. Price, $20.00.

In this Book of Portraits by Doris Ulmann, The Faculty of the Medical Department of The Johns Hopkins University is presented for the first time, in a series of photographic portraits.

In these portraits, charmingly artistic and richly done, the character and personality of each member is grasped with an intimate touch in surroundings of study, office or laboratory with none of the conventional trappings or artificial posing of the professional studio.

This book of portraits contains many of those outstanding figures responsible for much of modern American medicine who were long identified with The Medical Department of The Johns Hopkins University and are here happily recorded in the finest photographic art. In composition, light and shade, these portraits are as finely done as etchings.

ORDER DICTIONARIES BY NUMBER

AT the request of a great many of our customers, particularly our customers engaged in the commercial stationery business, we have numbered our Dictionaries. We believe that if all of our customers will acquire the habit of ordering by number instead of title, as heretofore, it will greatly simplify matters, both for them and for us.

For example, if you order "10 copies No. 217 Dictionary," we at once know that you want our Desk Webster in the black binding, with gold edges, indexed, the price of which is $1.50.

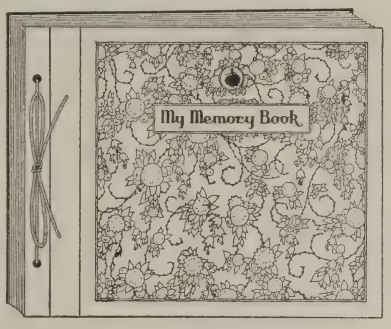
MY MEMORY BOOK

Illustrations by ETHEL SCHACHERER

This new loose-leaf book for recording the various interesting phases of student life marks a decided step forward in publications of this kind.

The book is divided into three sections. The first, of a silver gray de luxe paper, with decorative illustrations in a darker gray tone, contains the headings for entering the different records, school activities and the like, all covering a wide field. The second section is made up of black stock for photograph mounting, and the third section of gummed sheets for attaching newspaper or other clippings.



Another novel feature, which will appeal to many, is that of boxing with the books an enclosure containing a white pencil for marking on the photographic mounts, a tube of library paste, and a package of art corners.

New effects are introduced in the decorative style of the several bindings and nothing has been omitted to give the books a tone which removes them from the plane of the commonplace.

NUMEROLOGY MADE PLAIN

BY ARIEL YVON TAYLOR

Fortune and Fame Are in Your Name

NUMEROLOGY is an old, old science, first promulgated by Pythagoras, which has now become the theme of the hour as a means of entertainment as well as a scientific method of achieving success. It explains why the letters of your name and their corresponding numbers and those of your birth date affect your character and your destiny.

"NUMEROLOGY MADE PLAIN" contains a score of examples applying the principles of Numerology to the names of illustrious personages. Twelve of these are accompanied by half-tone portraits. There is also a catalogue of over 1,500 names with their vowel, consonant and total numerological values.

New Standard

Letterer and Show Card Writer

By MAXWELL L. HELLER, M. A., L. B.

Head of Art Department, William H. Seward High School, New York City

An entirely new work into which has gone the experience of twenty years of actual teaching of the art and practice of lettering and as many years of practical work in the trade. The style employed, therefore, is that of the teacher of the art rather than the artist. Rarely is the accomplished artist able to retrace and analyze his movements, most of which have become so habitual that when he attempts to explain or to teach he most often takes for granted those very steps which need most emphasis. Stress, in this book, is placed not so much upon what to do as how to do it. Art teachers in schools, students of commercial art, and business men and clerks who are desirous of making their own show cards, will find in this book a wealth of detailed instructions as to materials and methods.

EVOLUTION IN A NUTSHELL

The Pro and Con Briefly, Clearly and Fully Presented

By ALVIN SYLVESTER ZERBE, Ph. D., D. D.
Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio

This work, explaining evolution in the old and the new sense, and reviewing rapidly the usual proofs from geology, comparative anatomy, embryology and genetics, inquires next, to what extent evolution, as denoting continuity from the lowest to the highest (the "backbone of evolution" according to Sir Oliver Lodge), is a satisfactory and comprehensive world-view of the origin of matter, motion, energy, life, free will and man, or, in short, of the three realms of matter—force, life and mind.

Special features of the work are a thorough review of the skull argument of man's descent, a critique of the Scopes trial, and dissertations on the world-goal, animal intelligence, the personality of man, and animal and human life hereafter.

The book is written in a plain and forceful style and is brought down to date in every respect.

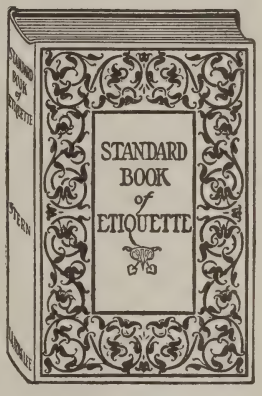
ETIQUETTE

Social Forms and Good Manners for All Occasions

By RENÉE B. STERN



NEVER before has there been such universal interest in proper social procedure as there is today. Because the average book on Etiquette takes little cognizance of changes due to changed modes of living and still less of the fact that different parts of the country accept certain customs rejected by others, this book has been written. It tells in simple, easily consulted form the accepted social procedure under all circumstances. Methods in the servantless house, the house with one maid and the establishment with a retinue are differentiated. Where customs vary in different parts of the country, this fact is noted. The author has had the advice and assistance of those whose life has been spent in the best of American and European social circles as well as of those whose business it is to advise on entertaining, on proper dress for various occasions and on management of the household. In this way local variations have been checked up and the difference between the theoretically correct procedure and that commonly accepted has been pointed out.

The "What, When and How" of Social Life

Good manners and correct form are an asset in business as well as in society. This book is replete with suggestions on all those details of personal behavior, everywhere and on all occasions, that distinguish "the person who knows." It is a complete guide to polite usage for all social functions—a key to the secret of social success.

The STANDARD BOOK OF ETIQUETTE, in its thirty-three clearly written chapters, covers the entire field thoroughly and authoritatively. A complete detailed alphabetical index points out the answer to any and all of the many problems that face one daily in social life.

The Grammar of Present Day English

By
CARL HOLLIDAY
Professor of English, University of Toledo

"A clear and simple statement of formal grammar."
EDWIN HERBERT LEWIS, Dean of Lewis Institute

Common sense is the basis of both presentation and application; illustrative forms and usages are drawn from common experiences. The style is easy, informal, almost conversational; the information is not buried under a mass of words. The arrangement is natural, each detail is thoroughly covered in its proper place, step by step. It teaches only what the child ought to remember; and it makes sure that both memory and practice is the inevitable result.

Only the essentials, but all of them. It contains all the English grammar used today; shows quickly but definitely what is correct, and why it is correct. Incidentally, the study of grammar becomes not the bug-bear it has always been to most of us, but a thing closely and pleasantly related to life, a vital growing organism whose destiny is the intimate concern of the individual.

"Almost as interesting reading as a story book. I have also enjoyed immensely reading the testimonials. I have called the attention of the principals of my district to the textbook. It certainly will be very helpful to teachers of the upper grades in their work in English Grammar."
R. M. HITCH, District Superintendent, Chicago, Ill.

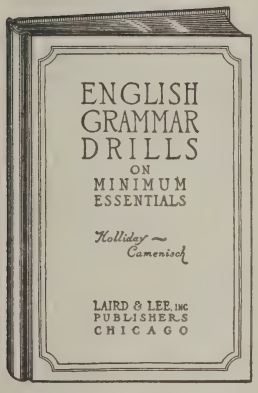
English Grammar Drills on Minimum Essentials

By

Carl Holliday, University of Toledo, Toledo
Sophia Camenisch, Parker High School, Chicago



More than 1,200 illustrative sentences carefully selected from the actual classroom experience of the authors; by their nature and variety adapted to meet individual needs and to challenge the pupil's power of thought. These drills aim at completeness in covering grammatical facts emphasized in recent valuable Reports on Minimum Essentials and meet the crying need of English teachers in High Schools today for an abundance of laboratory material on Grammar.

"What we teachers of English have needed and wanted for a long time — a book of exercises simple enough for first and second year High School pupils and numerous enough to give them the drill they need. Selected with care and discrimination, they will economize both the teacher's time and the pupil's."

ELIZA P. HALL, John Marshall High School, Chicago.

"Such texts as this one, which have grown up from the actual classroom experience of teachers, are going to replace the theoretical treatises of professors and scholars. When this happens, we shall begin to teach English."

H. Y. MOFFETT, Dept. of English, State University of Iowa.

LAIRD & LEE'S

Danish-Norwegian-English English-Danish-Norwegian SELF-PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY

By HENRY NISSEN

THE value and merit of this dictionary will readily be appreciated. Its two-fold design is to supply a long-felt need of having a self-pronouncing dictionary of convenient (hip-pocket) size and to give to the Danish-Norwegian population a system of markings that will minimize the difficulties of studying the English language. With a little study of the simplified system of diacritical markings and phonetic respellings used in Part I, one may, without difficulty, consult any standard English dictionary, and escape the confusion resulting from the use of two systems of markings. In Part II, a key to Danish-Norwegian pronunciation is provided, as an aid to those who wish to learn the Danish-Norwegian language.

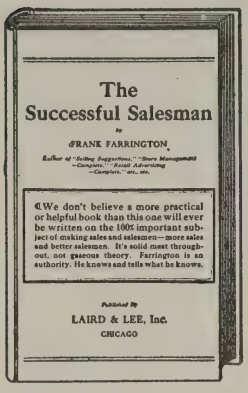
THE SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN



By FRANK FARRINGTON

A BOOK that successfully refutes the idea that "all you can teach is the theory of selling." It teaches the practice of selling; it makes salesmen. It is straight from the shoulder, practical, instructive, without a waste word. It is based on experience—both in teaching and in selling. It's a "class" book—the biggest class in the world—all who buy or sell. An employer said on presenting copies:

"Every Page Is a Coupon in the Big Book of Success"

The book appeals to clear-sighted sales-managers, who are, in increasing numbers, buying this book to give to their force. It pays a dividend to the house; it pays just as high a dividend to the salesman who reads its clearly written pages—who follows its keen suggestions.

Every business man or woman, every salesman, big or little, every ambitious young man is a potential buyer for this book. A single copy turned loose in your community may mean sales for many more. Any big employer who can be persuaded to read the book will readily see where a dozen more copies will bring him returns.

SALES-MANAGERS HAVE SAID:

"The Successful Salesman" has been perused with a great deal of interest; it is a mighty good book to have. Please send copies to the eighteen names herewith."—Edward Hines Lumber Co.

"Covers the ground most excellently; he gives things just about the right pitch."—Johnson & Johnson.

A BOOK FOR EVERY YACHTSMAN

THE YACHT ALICE

Planning, Building and Cruises. By Henry Howard, Alice Sturtevan Howard and Katharine Howard. With about sixty full-page illustrations, in cluding line plates reproduced directly from the original plans. Small 8vo. Cloth Gilt top. $5.00 ne

This important Yachting book is the work of Henry Howard— a Yachts man of International reputation—assisted by his wife and daughter.

His experience as a cruising yachtsman covers many years and man types of boats. The result of that experience and of the lessons taught by thes years of cruising and boat owning, is the ketch "Alice", one of the finest auxil ary cruising yachts in existence. He tells here the story of its planning, de signing, and building, in a most thorough and alluring manner, that will appea not only to the yachtsman, but to the general reader.

This is followed by a complete set of specifications—some 38 pages— the result of much study and of a life times' experience on cruising yachts, an comprising every possible detail of equipment for comfort, convenience, an safety. This part of his book will prove of special interest and practical servic to anyone who is anticipating building or buying a boat of any sort.

The second half of the book—the work of Mr. Howard's wife and daugh ter,—describes two remarkable cruises on the "Alice"; one from New York t Miami through the inland water ways, the other a cruise of several weeks' dura tion among the Bahama Islands and to Cuba.

The "Log" of each of these cruises is most entertainingly written, and be sides describing the daily life on board the "Alice", the places visited and th experiences gone through, gives a great deal of practical information that woul be of value to anyone contemplating similar cruises.

The Illustrations form an important feature of the book. The plate reproducing the plans have been made with great care, are all very legible an accurate, so that the veriest tyro at yachting would have no difficulty in unde standing them. The other illustrations are chiefly halftone reproductions c photographs taken during the two cruises, and these lend additional interest t the narratives.

A complete and comprehensive index adds greatly to the value of the boo especially in connection with the specifications.

Taken all in all, we have here one of the best and most comprehensiv all around "Yachting" books published in many years.

TORIES OF ACTUAL ADVENTURE AT SEA THAT DESERVE TO BECOME CLASSIC

HE VENTURESOME VOYAGES OF CAPTAIN VOSS

A new edition, with an introduction by Weston Martyn. Illustrated with numerous re-oductions from photographs and with the lines of the "Tilikum." 8vo., cloth, gilt top. With map owing route of the voyage around the world in the "Tilikum" as end papers. $4.50 net

The first edition of "Venturesome Voyages" was published, under Captain Voss' own super-ion, in Yokohama in 1913. But a small number of copies got into circulation when the entire ance of the edition was destroyed in the earthquake of some years ago. As a consequence, a book t ought to be a classic in its line is today almost unknown.

This new edition is an exact reprint, from one of the excessively rare copies of the first issue, th new illustrations, and a most interesting introduction by a man who, a sailor himself, was imate with the author during the last ten years of his life, and here tells his story.

THE "TILIKUM" AT MARGATE, IN 1904

Captain Voss left Victoria, British Columbia, on May 21, 1901, and with one companion sailed forty thousand s. His canoe was built by a North-American Indian, long deceased, whose skull was carried throughout the voyage.

As tales of adventure at sea, told with a simple directness and truly human feeling, the stories of the cruises Xora, Tilikum and Sea Queen would be hard to beat. Whether treasure-hunting in Xora, sailing round the ld in Tilikum, or fighting and being capsized in a typhoon in Sea Queen, Captain Voss' stories are good reading.

But apart from this, they contain the observations of a master seaman on the handling of small craft in ry weather at sea which are of incalculable interest to the many whose work or pleasure takes them afloat in els of small tonnage.

The voyage of Tilikum, an Indian dugout canoe, decked and adapted for the purpose, is one of the most arkable ever undertaken. Starting from Victoria, British Columbia, Voss and a companion sailed in her ss the Pacific to Australia, thence to Tasmania and New Zealand, through Torres Straits to the Indian Ocean South Africa. Then round the Cape of Good Hope, across the Atlantic to Brazil, and so to London via the res. This little ship—30 ft. long at the keel, and with an extreme beam of 5 ft. 6 ins.—covered 40,000 miles he ocean, and rode out many heavy gales, thanks to the means employed by her skipper and described in the k.

The new illustrations include a picture of the Tilikum in 1926, the lines of the little ship (taken, it is true, she had opened out, but still sufficient to give a good idea of her form), and the picture of her as she appeared ew Zealand when on her voyage round the world, and before the original figurehead of the Indian canoe had destroyed.

LIFE AS MATE ON A CALIFORNIA CLIPPER SHIP

FAIR WINDS AND FOUL

A Narrative of Daily Life Aboard an American Clipper Ship. By Frederick Perry, wh made the voyages. Illustrated with six plates, printed separately and tipped on to dark grey mount 8vo. (9 x 6 in.) Cloth, gilt tops. $3.50 n

In 1873, the Author was appointed as a Cadet Midshipman in the service of the Pacific Mail Steamsh Company. At the end of a three year course he entered the service of the California Clipper ships. This bo relates the stories of several voyages that he made while working his way up from third mate to first mate at t height of the history of these famous ships. He writes from personal experience and his narrative, always graph at times almost thrilling, is bound to hold the reader's attention to the end.

"The story of life on a clipper ship has been told before, but usually from the point of view of the captai supreme and apart, or of that hard-driven human engine, the man before the mast. Mr. Perry's book presents from another point of view, one which is less known but undoubtedly of equal, if not greater, interest than t others—that of the mate, the man whom he describes as the 'general manager, auditor, superintendent, humori blasphemer, sailing-master, official log-keeper, work-creator and sleep destroyer' of the ship."

SHANGHAIED OUT OF FRISCO IN THE NINETIES

By Hiram P. Bailey, F. R. G. S. A narrative of a voyage across San Francisco Bay t Mexico, Chile, Australia and Fiji. Illustrated with a frontispiece by the eminent Marine Artis J. Spurling, six line drawings, a deck plan and a chart. Small 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $2.50 n

Who has not burnt the midnight oil, over the classic story of Mr. Dana in "Two Years Before the Mast? That intrepid adventurer went to sea voluntarily. But Mr. Bailey, on the contrary, was never even asked "b your leave!" He was snatched suddenly away from all friends, and found himself, when he awoke, upon a strang American ship, among strange men, upon a strange sea, out of sight of land, with a twenty-thousand mile voya in front!

His nautical growth among real deep-water sailormen and a "Hard-case" mate is most vividly, and o occasion, most humorously, depicted. The narrative bristles with exciting, but no less true, incidents of the com mon hardships, desperate dangers, laughable whimsicalities, and sea superstitions in a long sailing ship voyage- now, alas! becoming more and more a rarity. A decade, and it will have passed forever.

The author arrestingly brings before all stay-at-homes the terrible events in one of the most vivid pictur imaginable—reminding one strongly of Conrad in its descriptive power, and of Clark Russell in its verisimilitud

By George Hugh Banning. Profusely illustrated with photographs reproduced in Collotyp and half tone. Small 8vo. ($9\frac{3}{8}$ x $6\frac{3}{8}$ in.) Cloth. Gilt top. $4.50 ne

A lively account of a cruise to the islands lying off the western coast of Mexico, and of visits to some of th towns and estuaries of the mainland, written by one who believes that though the geographical definition of a island may be true, it is not the whole truth, for it ignores the mystery, romance and untold possibilities of adve ture.

By Basil Lubbock, author of "The Log of the 'Cutty Sark'." Illustrated with repr ductions of valuable and rare oil paintings, lithographs and photographs. Small 8vo. Clot gilt top. $3.50 n

The author gives a brilliant account of the lines that served the Atlantic Ferry in the first half of the Nin teenth Century, with their smart passages and their "hard citizen" officers.

The second part teems with romance, including an account of the rescue of the survivors of the "Ville Havre" and of the "Loch Earn" by the "Trimountain." It is an interesting record of the days when the Yank Packet was Lord of the Western Ocean.

Abstract logs, voyages, specifications, a list of Donald Mackay-built ships and the record of the best Atlan passages are in the appendices.

A CLASSIC OF AMERICAN WHALE-FISHING

IMROD OF THE SEA

the American Whalemen. By William M. Davis. New edition, with an roduction by John R. Spears author of "Story of the New England Whalers," . Illustrated with thirty-one full-page plates. Small 8vo. Cloth. gilt top. $3.00 net

A new edition of one of the best books on the whale-fishery ever written, that has been -of-print for years, odd copies bringing high prices when occasionally occurring for sale. Spears' introduction, gives a delightful historical resumé of the story of the growth and r decline of the industry, and adds materially to the interest and value of this new edition.

"Those who had thrilled to 'There She Blows,' whether heard afloat or read from a ated paper, called for a book to be written by a whaler Captain which should relate actual eriences and describe the ships and the life afloat . . . in short, should portray the whaler ne lived and worked, say, in the year 1846, when 736 Vessels under the American flag scoured seas of the world in search of Oil. This call was adequately answered by Captain William Davis, who . . . not only authoritatively described the whalers, their ships and their imple- nts, but his book is loaded to the 'hatch coamings' with tales of adventure, every one of which 'corking' good story."

From John R. Spears' Introduction.

PANISH WATERS

By Henry Reynolds. With twenty-one illustrations in halftone and five ps. 8vo. (9⅜ x 6½ in.). Cloth, gilt top. $4.50 net

Handsomely printed and illustrated, this is a book which will appeal to all Yachtsmen and ers of the Sea, and indeed to all those who like to read the story of how a small crew enjoyed tling with wind and water.

The author, who has roamed the Seas for more than forty years in small craft, here tells several sea voyages in his small sailing yacht, the "Winnie," which was never fitted with an iliary motor, its owner saying, "My cruising began under canvas, and under canvas it is likely end."

He tells not only of his adventures in the yacht, but of his adventures on land. He has a t, whimsical style, and his descriptions of his companions and especially of "the Boy," ke excellent reading.

Though sufficient technical details are given to satisfy the experienced sea-farer, the tter is set forth in a form likely to appeal to the general reader, more particularly those who e followed the recent revival of interest in the story of the days of the old sailing ships and he men who adventured in them.

HE RETURN OF THE "CUTTY SARK"

By C. Fox Smith. Illustrated with eight full-page plates—pictures of the nous ship and her Captain. Small 4to. (8½ x 6⅞ in.). Cloth back, board es, gilt top. $1.25 net

Everybody interested in "Sea Books" and especially those who have read Lubbock's ghtful "Log of the 'Cutty Sark' " will want to read this brief biography of the famous old per ship, and the story of her "come back." The illustrations add much to the attractive- s of an altogether delightful little volume.

THE SHIPS AND SAILORS OF OLD SALEM

The record of a brilliant era in American Achievement. By Ralph D. Paine, author "Roads of Adventure," "The Fighting Fleets," "Lost Ships and Lonely Seas," etc. Illustrated with portraits, reproductions of old prints, etc. A new edition, revised, with a new preface by the author and a new index. 8vo. ($8\frac{5}{8}$ x 6 in.) Cloth. $4.00 net

This book describes the deeds of a race of red-blooded Americans who won honor for their flag and renown for their nation during the era of its struggle for very existence. Of late there is a revival of interest in the tales of the Pirates and Buccaneers of the blue Caribbean, tales artfully colored with the hues of romance. These hardy seafarers of Salem would have laughed at the notion of finding romance in the scurvy rogues who harried the trading voyages and were a routine hazard of the day's work. Every merchant vessel carried a battery of cannon behind her stout bulwarks and her seamen were trained to handle them.

As the Nation would seem to have turned its back to the sea, and all efforts to revive the old maritime spirit to have languished, it is well that the chronicles of its past greatness afloat should be cherished as a precious asset and a most illustrious heritage. None of its builders played a larger, more thrilling part than did these merchant explorers and fighting seamen of old Salem, who sailed where no other ships had dared to go.

The Memoirs of a Famous Master of a Famous Ship

FROM THE FORECASTLE TO THE CABIN

Being the memoirs of Captain Samuel Samuels of the famous packet-ship "Dreadnought." New edition, with an introduction by RALPH D. PAINE, author of "The Ships and Sailors of Old Salem," etc. With 24 illustrations, full-page and in the text. Small 8vo. ($8\frac{3}{8}$ x $5\frac{3}{4}$ in.) Cloth. $2.50 net

"Here is the true sailor of romance, who ran away to sea at the tender age of eleven, who was shanghaied by a Baltimore Crimp, chased by West India pirates, sailed around the world in a haunted ship, was master on a Yankee quarter deck at twenty-one, fought cannibals, declined the post of Admiral in the Turkish Navy, rescued a Christian lady from a Turkish harem, battled with Mediterranean banditti, and commanded the "Dreadnought" in seventy-eight voyages across the Atlantic, and always brought her safely into port."—From Ralph D. Paine's introduction.

Two Important Books on THE WAR AGAINST THE SUBMARINES

THE AUXILIARY PATROL

By E. Keble Chatterton, late Lieut. Commander, R. N. V. R., author of "Q-Ships and Their Story," etc. With 48 half-tone illustrations, besides diagrams, etc., in the text. 8vo ($8\frac{7}{8}$ x 6 in.) Cloth, gilt top. $3.75 net

The story of the Minesweepers, Trawlers, Drifters, Motor-boats, etc., which, as auxiliaries, afforded valuable aid to the Navy during the great war.

The story which Mr. E. Keble Chatterton tells in this volume is fully equal in interest to that which he has previously told in his well-known "Q-Ships and their Story," and is perhaps even richer in variety of incident. Though much has been written about the admirable work by the trawlers, drifters, yachts, and other miscellaneous craft which were taken up by the Admiralty in the early days of the war and formed into the "New Navy," there has been hitherto no attempt to place the whole story in its true historical perspective as part of the amazing history of the World War.

Indeed it may safely be claimed that the book presents as comprehensive and as correct an account of its vast subject as it is possible to comprise within the limits of a single volume; and that while it has the strongest possible appeal to all who love a brave story, it is also of permanent value as a contribution to naval history.

Q-SHIPS AND THEIR STORY

By E. Keble Chatterton, author of "The Auxiliary Patrol," "Sailing Ships and their Story," etc. With 50 full-page and smaller illustrations, chiefly from photographs. 8vo ($8\frac{7}{8}$ x 6 in.). Cloth, gilt top. $3.75 net

This wonderful and brave story of ships and men gives a full account derived from authentic sources, of the part played by decoy ships in combatting the submarine menace during the great war. The deeds described will forever remain one of the most glorious chapters in the chronicles of the sea. Comparatively few people realize, even now, the wonderful work which these mystery ships did during the war. The author writes in most cases from actual personal contact with the events described.

"Contains more of the Glamour of the Sea, and of heroic deeds by seafaring men than any war book yet published."—Glasgow Herald.

MEMOIRS OF THE PALMY DAYS OF SAILING SHIPS

BEFORE THE MAST — AND AFTER

The Autobiography of a Sailor and Ship Owner. By Sir Walter Runciman, Bart. Illustrated with twenty-six full-page plates, chiefly from photographs. 8vo. ($8\frac{7}{8}$ x 6 in.). Cloth, t top. $4.50 net

Sir Walter Runciman has had a remarkable career, beginning with his running away to a when a boy of twelve. He is one of the few living men who had personal experien e of iling Ships, small and large, in the sixties. The story of the varied craft; their life all over the rld; their quaint, courageous, fascinating crews; and their many adventures, are here vividly t forth in a volume that proves the truth of the old adage that "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

Here is a book which is a living fragment of life, a portrait-gallery of types, which, under ew surface changes, remain today what they always were, the pith of a sea-born nation.

A DICTIONARY OF PIRATES

HE PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Giving Particulars of the Lives and Deaths of the Pirates and Buccaneers. By PHILIP OSSE. With six illustrations and a map. Small 8vo. (8 x $5\frac{1}{2}$ in.). Cloth, gilt top. $3.00 net

A book that is the outcome of many years' research in pirate lore and literature, and that kes the form of biographies, short or long, according to the facts discoverable, of pirates and ccaneers. Commencing from the earliest times it is brought up to the present day, as, although e advent of steam in the beginning of the last century put an end to piracy proper, a debased m of this calling is still practised off the coast of China.

Although Mr. Gosse's book is a serious work, and the records therein entirely true, it kes most exciting reading, as the lives of those who went "on the account" were necessarily ways packed with adventure. Members of the fair sex are to be found among the pirates, and ey did not err in leniency but adopted most bloodthirsty methods.

The Map is a reproduction of one Contained in "A New Survey of the West Indies, or the glish American; His Travail by Sea and Land. By Thomas Gage, London 1655."

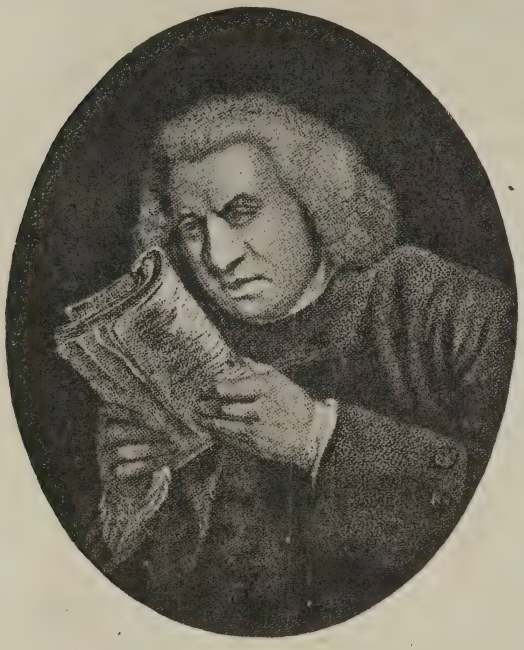
LD SAILING SHIP DAYS

"From Forecastle to Quarter-deck." By Captain John D. Whidden. With an introction by RALPH D. PAINE. With 29 illustrations from photographs. Small 8vo. (8 x $5\frac{1}{2}$). Cloth, gilt top. $3.50 net

A handsome new edition of an absorbing story of a quarter-century's life at sea during e palmy days of the old-time Sailing Ships; the narrative of the actual experiences of one of e captains who commanded and sailed them. Both ships and captains are all of the past and th them have departed the glamour and the romance of the sea, never to return.

As RALPH D. PAINE, in his delightful introduction to this new edition says:

"It is well worth while to reprint Captain Whidden's book and thereby permit the present neration to enjoy him. He will find an audience larger and more appreciative than when his ry was first published. The book deserves to live because of the unusual blend of truth and ertainment. He did not realize it when he was writing, but the episodes of his career were varied and colorful as to satisfy the requirements of a fictionist. In other words, things pened just about as you would have wished had you dreamed them for yourself, and this is ultimate test of a good tale."



A Handsome New Issue of

ROGER INGPEN'S Beautifully Illustrated Edition of

THE LIFE OF SAMUEL JOHNSON

By James Boswell. Newly edited, with notes by Roger Ingpen. A ne edition, with a new introduction by Mr. Ingpen. With more than five hundr illustrations, full-page and in the text, including thirteen full-page plates in phot gravure. Three vols., 4to. Cloth, gilt tops (boxed). $15.00 n

THE SAME

Elegantly bound by Bayntun of Bath, England, in half morocco extr gilt tops, hand tooled and finished. $35.00 n

The original issue of Ingpen's beautifully illustrated edition was printe from type, so that in preparing this new issue, which was done under Mr. Ingpen supervision, it became necessary to re-set the text entirely, so that the book again printed from new type. The original illustrations have been used, excep that the full-page photogravures have been printed from new plates, obtaine direct from the original portraits and paintings, as was done in the first issue.

Mr. Ingpen has contributed a very delightful new introduction, in whic he traces the growth of interest in Johnson and his circle which has taken plac since the original publication of his edition, nearly twenty years ago.

"Mr. Ingpen is too good a Johnsonian and too good an editor to let thes pictures be a mere collection. He has chosen authentic pictures only, and furthe they are pictures that rightly illustrate the Life. Reynolds, Gainsborough Romney—here are three masters of art who contribute from the stores fro which it has been possible to draw . . . It should appeal to a great compan of readers, those, in particular, who still have to taste the joy of acquaintanc with the immortal book. Their introduction to it could not take place unde better auspices than these well-illustrated, well-printed, well-edited pages."

—London Daily Chronicle.

An absolute facsimile of the original edition of

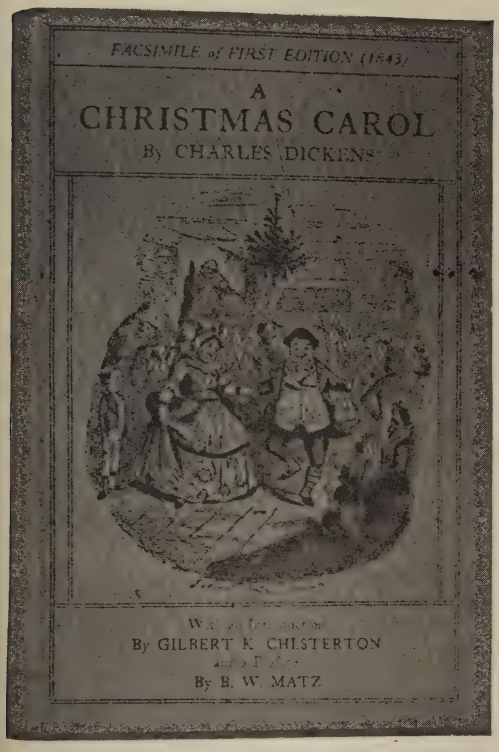
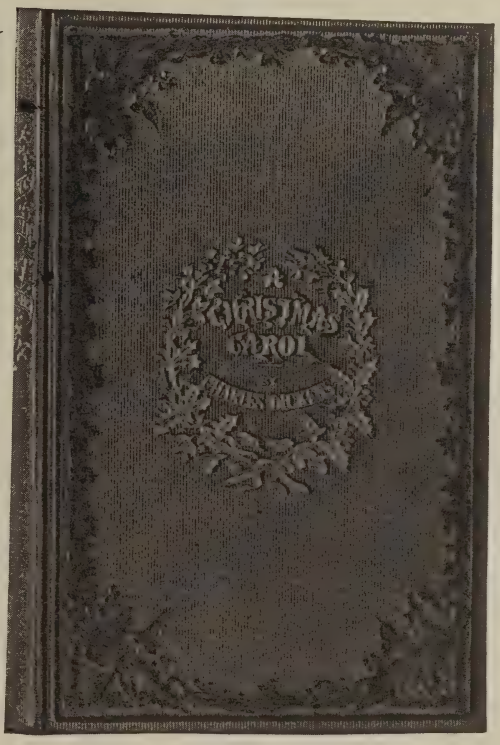
DICKENS' "CHRISTMAS CAROL"

A Christmas Carol in Prose; being a Ghost Story of Christmas. By Charles Dickens. With four illustrations in color and four woodcuts by John Leech. A facsimile of the original edition, with an introduction by G. K. Chesterton and a preface by B. W. Matz. Also containing facsimile reproductions of the title page, preface, and top-half of the first page from Dickens' original manuscript. 16mo. ($6\frac{3}{4}$ x $4\frac{3}{8}$ in.). Cloth, gilt edges. Each copy in a decorative Christmas box. $2.00 net.





In the preparation of this edition of Dickens' wonderful story, every effort has been made to present an exact replica of the original edition, published a few weeks before the Christmas of 1843. As far as is possible in these days, all points as regards paper, type, illustrations and binding have been faithfully adhered to. Leech's four wood-cuts have been printed from electros of the original woodblocks, while the four color prints have gone through eight printings to obtain a perfectly satisfactory result.

The binding is the reddy-brown cloth, with the green end papers, and gilt edges, as in a genuine first edition, and the title page is printed in red and blue as was that original issue.

Even the typographical inconsistency is repeated, as on the first page of a first edition where "Stave I" appears instead of "Stave One" to match the other chapter headings, a mistake which, on discovery, was corrected in subsequent reprints.

Chesterton's delightful introduction is not the least of the attractions of this quaint little edition.

Then the type is the largest ever used in printing any edition, making a page that it pleasure to read.

The Illustrations—nearly 200 of them—are careful reproductions, direct from origi proofs, of the old-time favorites, long associated in the minds of Dickens lovers with the sto they illustrate, and including the etchings and drawings of George Cruikshank, Hablot K. Brov ("Phiz"), Seymour, Barnard, Leech, Frost, Maclise and others.

The Binding is neat in its appearance and eminently serviceable, making the set one t is an ornament to the library shelves, though it is distinctly a "Readers'" set.

The Convenient Size of the Volumes (averaging about a pound in weight) makes the a distinct improvement upon any previous large-type edition—books that are easy to hold a read.

Finally the Price—only about $1.30 per volume—will appeal to any one familiar with present-day costs of book manufacture, as something as unusual as the set itself.

oughtn't to. Here, young 'ooman, Miss Sawbones, Mrs. Vinkle, don't!'

Whether it was the magic of Mr. Winkle's name, or the coolness of the open air, or some recollection of Mr. Weller's voice, that revived Arabella, matters not. She raised her head and languidly inquired, 'Who's that, and what do you want?'

'Hush,' said Sam, swinging himself on to the wall, and crouching there in as small a compass as he could reduce himself to, 'only me, miss, only me.'

'Mr. Pickwick's servant,' said Arabella, earnestly.

'The wery same, miss,' replied Sam. 'Here's Mr. Vinkle reg'larly sewed up vith desperation, miss.'

THE NOVELS THAT MADE TROLLOPE FAMOUS

THE CHRONICLES OF BARSETSHIRE

Comprising: The Warden; Barchester Towers; Doctor Thorne; Framle Parsonage; The Small House at Allington; The Last Chronicle of Barset. E Anthony Trollope. WITH FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS FROM ORIGINA DRAWINGS BY SIR JOHN E. MILLAIS AND OTHERS. Together, 6 vol small 8vo. Cloth, gilt tops. $18.0

Prophecy is notoriously unsafe, but Dr. Richard Garnett took small ris in predicting, in the "Dictionary of National Biography" during the nineties, tha "when the twentieth century desires to estimate the nineteenth, the works Trollope will be studied with an attention accorded to no contemporary work the kind, except, perhaps, George Eliot's 'Middlemarch'."

The set here offered comprises the series known as the "Chronicles Barsetshire." Trollope wrote and published a number of novels before meetin hard-earned success with "The Warden," "Barchester Towers," "Dr. Thorne, "Framley Parsonage," "The Small House at Allington" and "The La Chronicle of Barset." THESE STAND OUT AS SIX OF HIS BEST WORK

THE ILLUSTRATIONS include a number of the original illustrations b Millais, of whom Trollope could never speak too highly and of whose work h said, "In every figure that he drew it was his object to promote the views of th writer whose work he had undertaken to illustrate, and he never spared himse any pains in studying that work so as to enable him to do so. I have carrie on some of these characters from book to book and have had my own ear ideas impressed indelibly on my memory by the excellence of his delineations.

Trollope did his writing often under most uncomfortable conditions- riding in a train (sixty years ago!), or on board ship, in the intervals of man œuvring an important postal treaty with an African potentate. Though he en countered all sorts and conditions of men in his wanderings over the globe, h can hardly have had the opportunity of making an intensive study of one par ticular class, and it is all the more remarkable that his presentations of eccle siastical life should have "come off" so successfully. Yet he tells us, in relatio to "The Warden," "My archdeacon was the simple result of an effort of m moral consciousness. . . As far as I can remember I had not then spoken t an archdeacon."

LIPPINCOTT'S PRACTICAL BOOKS
FOR THE ENRICHMENT OF HOME LIFE

A real home should express the personality of the owner. It should speak of rest and beauty. The influence of surroundings on ourselves and friends is one that goes deep into our daily lives. Many factors enter into the furnishing problems which face the householder of either large or small means. There is the matter of furniture. To get the best results, one should know about the styles of different periods; the combinations that may be made; arts and crafts objects; color schemes that may be evolved; oriental rugs; the tapestries; the wall coverings; the architecture suitable for the home you want; the laying out of the garden and grounds, etc., etc.

LIPPINCOTT'S PRACTICAL BOOKS offer you this knowledge in classified, compact, complete form, giving a vast amount of information on all of the above subjects. Let us send you illustrated circulars of the thirteen titles and of the special volume on COLOR SCHEMES FOR THE HOME.

There is the atmosphere of the old-time ships and the spirit of the sailors of a century ago, such as you find in the pages of Dana and Stevenson. . . . Following "The Mutineers" comes this romance, filled with the thrills that lovers of adventure yarns get, for example, from reading "Treasure Island" and — well, the list is distressingly short and has had few additions in recent years . . . ALEXANIAN (MANOOG DER).

When I Was a Boy in Armenia 1.25
(Children of Other Lands Books.)
The writer of this interesting and inspiring book was educated at Harvard, and he tells with simple sincerity his life story, from a tragic childhood onward. He at the same time tells fully of Armenian customs, education, industries, and festivities, from the games of early youth to the solemn observances of later life among an intensely religious people. The intelligence of the Armenians, their dramatic history, and their heroism under oppression are ably brought out.

ALLEN (GRACE BARTON).

Water Color Painting. Illustrated 1.75

Her family conduct the Brookfield Inn, with its set of more or less disagreeable, cranky regular boarders, not on the best of terms with each other or with themselves. BERNARD (FLORENCE SCOTT).

Diana of Briarcliffe. Illustrated..... 1.50

It was almost too great a test for any girl that came to Diana Lynn. To have a kind lady of wealth, won by the girl's personality, take her from the Anthony Flower Home for Orphans, fit her out sumptuously and send her to college seemed like a fairy tale come true, and might well turn her head, as it did—for a time. But the best part of it—and what makes this story worth while—is that Diana did not give up.

BEURET (GEORGETTE).

When I Was a Girl in France. Illustrated..... 1.25

The reason is that not until now has a writer appeared to satisfy the strict requirements of the publishers and do justice to the opportunity. Ask and Receive 2.00

This is first of all a thoughtful study of the teaching of Jesus on the universal human need of prayer. In simple, forceful words, and with reasoning so clear that it is a pleasure to follow it, the author develops the sure possibilities of prayer and its necessary attendant, faith, including the vital subject of healing.

Knowing the Master Through John. An Interpretation in the Light of Modern Thought and Understanding. 2.50

The late Aaron Martin Crane was noted for his remarkable power to put into the minds of others the clear results of his own great scholarship and exhaustive study. Hence no Bible class ever held more devoted members than the one which he conducted, and so valued were his teachings that stenographic records were voluntarily kept. No other lessons seemed quite so impressive as those devoted to the Gospel of John, for the reason that nowhere else do we find so much that is vital to the Christian religion, and such is the depth of this Gospel that few indeed have ever grasped its truths in their fullness, or gained the correct idea of the Master which is there to be found. As one reads page after page of Mr. Crane's sound reasoning, based on wide research, he becomes more and more grateful to the great teacher whose work has made possible a book that shows the teachings of Jesus in the true light which the world needs.

Finally a new uncle came to his old home and with him the beginning of even greater happiness than Ann had dreamed of.

When I Was a Boy in Scotland. Illustrated..... 1.25

(See Children of Other Lands Books.)

Scotland does not seem a strange land to us in the sense that more remote countries, with strikingly different language and customs, are strange. Yet a boyhood there is quite different from any known in this country. The author of "When I Was a Boy in Scotland" is now a clergyman in the State of New Jersey, but he grew up a Scot, and after some years as a sailor completed his education in the United States. He is an able writer and makes clear to us Scotland's hold upon the affections of her sons and daughters, even though so many are in all parts of the world. To read this book is not only to know a real Scotch lad but to learn many things in a pleasing way.

The Book of Hallowe'en. With magazine references, reading lists, index to quotations, and general index. Illustrated. 1.75

The only book entirely devoted to Hallowe'en, the most romantic and the most frolicsome of all the year's celebrations. Starting with a brief account of sun-worship, it tells of the rites of the Druids on their autumn festival, now Hallowe'en. Down the centuries to the "holydays" of All Saints' and All Souls', it reaches the survival of mingled superstitions in our own land. Miss Kelley's trained knowledge as one of the staff of the Public Library, Lynn, Mass., has enabled her to make this a book of exceptional value.

KELLOGG (ELIJAH).

There is a manliness of tone in Elijah Kellogg's books for boys that is very much admired. His heroes are not those whom the death of some rich and distant relative, or a sudden turn of fortune's wheel, makes rich and influential. They hew out their own fortunes, struggling honestly with difficulties, and rising by means of them to a higher manhood. It is doing wrong by a boy to let him grow up without reading Elijah Kellogg's books.

"The Blue and Gold Tea-set," "The Merry Drum," "The Surprise Box," "The White Swan," are some of the titles of the stories which follow the toys purchased at the Toy Shop to their various new homes, and tell of what happens to them there. There are a number of suggestions for play, which mothers may use, but these are incidental. The aim of the book is to give joy to children.

(See Children of Other Lands Books.)

No land has a name more suggestive of an interesting story than Persia, and the author has told most entertainingly of the real life of the people, learned by growing up as one of them, with exceptional intelligence and advantages. One very interesting feature of the book is a full account of the making of various kinds of beautiful rugs. The author's style is good, and his evident sincerity impressive.

PARK (FRANCIS E.)

Grey Sprite, the Silver Knight. His Adventures in the Old, Old Forest. Picture Jacket and Illustrations in Colors... 2.00

The story is that Grey Sprite, trusted knight of the fairy queen, seeks at her command an ancient jewel. His quest is long and hard, and is not over without war with the wicked gnomes, enemies of the fairies. After a wealth of adventures, the story ends as all would wish. The nature study introduced in the most natural way is so accurate as well as vivid that a child unconsciously grasps a great many lasting bits of knowledge that are a valuable part of education, while at the same time imbibing honor, kindness, and loyalty. For children from six to ten, if they can get it away from the older folk.

The house did run away, at least its location was greatly changed, and it contained a great mystery in the shape of a code letter, the unravelling of which was intensely interesting to Theodore and Jane, who did not go away for summer vacation and were keen for something to report in competition with their mates who had exciting trips in prospect. Even if they found no chest of gold, they did better; they restored the good name of a noble-hearted Grand Army veteran, unjustly suspected of treasonable conduct in border warfare.

FINGER PLAYS.

Trade-Mark Registered in U.S. Patent Office.

This book is too well known to need description. Equally a favorite in primary grades and the kindergarten and in homes where there are young children, more than 100,000 have been used, and the sale is increasing because no other book of its kind approaches it in child-interest, wisdom of thought, or beauty of expression. The bright, "catchy" tunes, and the clearness with which the artist has illustrated the plays are just what is needed to complete the work of a great teacher and talented poet.

What Happened to Inger Johanne. Illustrated..... 1.75
Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer.
Wherever Inger Johanne is, there is something going on, and wherever anything is going on, there is Inger Johanne. She tells us all about it so naturally and with such unconscious humor that we quite forget she is a character in a book. Her comical mishaps that fill the book with fun are many and varied.

Inger Johanne's Lively Doings. Illustrated..... 1.75
Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer.
There are no dull pages in Inger's chronicles. From the time she gets up in the morning till she goes to bed at night, her life is crowded with plans and pranks. Some of these bring her to grief, but are none the less fascinating for all that; not even to Inger Johanne who tells of haps and mishaps alike with the most engaging candor and enjoyment. If naturalness and ease are indications, Inger Johanne has lost nothing in the change from one language to the other; but is at all times and in all places herself; a breezy, unspoiled, wholesomely original child who will be a good book-companion for other children.

Four Cousins. Illustrated..... 1.75

Translated from the Norwegian of Dikken Zwilgmeyer. A good grandmother in Norway was lonely and found life dull. So she wrote to her four daughters—one in Sweden, one in South Germany, one in a Norwegian city home, and one far up in the mountains—that each must send a child to stay for a year. So they came, and if disturbance and excitement and variety were what Grandmother wanted, the four cousins certainly furnished enough to satisfy even her active mind.

Twelve-year-old Nora lived in a New York apartment with her widowed mother. By chance the children meet, and the wilful sister insists upon a visit with her real mother, which had startling consequences.

Four Girls of Forty Years Ago. Illustrated..... 1.50
These four sisters, with ages from seven to twelve, are very real little girls because the interesting things they do were actually done by children who lived when it was thought remarkable to have even a telephone.

RICE (REBECCA)

The Brown Castle. Illustrated. Picture Jacket in Colors. 1.50
The Brown Castle was the name fancifully given to a mansion, long unoccupied, the spacious grounds of which had come to be regarded as a special playground by the children of the neighborhood. A change came when the large house was reopened under the charge of a bright and winsome young lady, playfully called the "Princess," as befitted a Castle. How she won the friendship of the children where most would have found conditions intolerable is a delightful story in itself, but it meant most to little Betty about whom the story centers.

A Boy of Old Quebec. Illustrated. Picture Jacket in Colors. 1.75
During the height of the fierce Indian war that followed the settlement of Quebec, the "Boy," Jean Ribault, comes from France with his father, mother, and sister to make a home in the New World. The time is the middle of the seventeenth century. The friendship of the wise and noble priest, Father Brébeuf, is most fortunate for them, and Jean learns woodcraft by long trips with an Indian lad of his own age. This brings adventure in abundance, including a highly important mission to Governor Peter Stuyvesant in New Amsterdam. Later the two friends share the winter wanderings of roving Algonquin Indians, and reach the towns of the more settled and prosperous Hurons on Georgian Bay, only to encounter war and tragedy before there is a reunited family.

The Boy with the U. S. Survey.

Here are told the adventures of the U. S. Geological Survey, not in dry statistical reports and bluebooks, but graphically woven into a stirring narrative that both pleases and instructs.

The Boy with the U. S. Foresters.

The life of a youthful forester is followed in adventurous detail—the mighty representative of our country's Government though young in years—a youthful monarch in a vast domain of forest.

The Boy with the U. S. Census.

A bright American boy learns the growth and resources of our vast country, and how the necessary information is gathered, often with hardship and peril.

The Boy with the U. S. Fisheries.

There is no lack of exciting scenes. The far Aleutian Islands have witnessed more desperate sea-fighting than has occurred elsewhere since the days of the Spanish buccaneers, and pirate craft, which the U. S. Fisheries must watch, rifle in hand, are prowling in the Behring Sea today.

The Boy with the U. S. Indians.

A book thrilling in its human side by the heroism demanded in the little-known adventures of those who do the work of "Uncle Sam." This is especially true of those engaged in work with and for the Indians—always a name to conjure with among boys.

The Boy with the U. S. Explorers.

How our Government explores strange places and investigates countless odd forms of plant life to develop that which may benefit the people of this great land.

The Boy with the U. S. Life-Savers.

This volume, with its typical American boy as a centre, shows how our Government protects its citizens with the aid of the Revenue Cutter Service, the Life-Saving Service, and in the depths of the earth, where men from the Bureau of Mines take the lead in rescue work in colliery disasters.

The Boy with the U. S. Mail.

The officials of the Post Office department have, as in the case of all other departments covered in this series, extended their courtesy to Dr. Rolt-Wheeler to enable him to tell us about one of the most interesting forms of "Uncle Sam's" care for us.

The Boy with the U. S. Weather Men.

Weather is still the most important thing in the life of Man, and this book captures attention as much by the sheer fascination of its subject material as by the deftness with which this is woven into a genuine and gripping boys' story.

The Boy with the U. S. Naturalists.

This volume shows the great value of bird life, demonstrating the dependence upon birds of the entire food supply of our country. Exciting features are supplied by piracy and adventure.

The Boy with the U. S. Trappers.

The author tells the work of a little-known branch of the United States Government, the trappers and hunters of the Biological Survey. This is a book of true hunting, not done only as sport, but to save the lives and properties of the citizens of the United States.

ROLT-WHEELER (FRANCIS).—Continued.

The Boy with the U. S. Secret Service. Illustrated..... 1.75

The Boy with the American Red Cross. Illustrated 1.75
The Red Cross is the hero-heart of America set in action, and comes to the front in practical ways undreamed of by the public, and, in this book, Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has given heart-stirring narrations of all that is finest in this phase of unselfish American adventure.

The Boy with the U. S. Marines. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book tells the thrilling story of the Marines in Haiti, of their stand in Pekin when maddened mobs of Chinese stormed the American legation, of their difficult task in Mexico, their brilliant action in the Near East, and their lonely guard on Pacific Islands where they were the most distant outposts of law and order. To read this book is to feel the spell of Americanism as it touches primitive, barbaric, or strife-torn countries, to realize that arms may be a potent force for peace, and to have allegiance and love for the Stars and Stripes both heightened and deepened.

The Wonder of War in the Air. With illustrations from unusual war photographs and sketches..... 1.75

The Wonder of War in the Holy Land. Illustrated..... 1.75
This book vividly shows the extraordinary difficulties of the campaigns in the waterless deserts of Egypt, Arabia, Palestine, and Syria, as well as in the burning flood-plains of Mesopotamia.

The Polar Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

Strange fights with walrus and polar-bear on the sea, ice perils from drifting floes and crashing bergs, and the constant fight against hunger, cold, and darkness, give this book a glamor as great as is its wealth of information.

The Aztec-Hunters. Illustrated 1.75

Combining the excitement of exploration with the intense grip of a mystery story, the true romance of a vast and powerful American civilization, which flourished more than a thousand years before Columbus landed, is here told.

The Wreck-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

With young Latimer Voley, son and grandson of the most famous "wreckers" of the Bahamas, as a central figure, we are shown how sunken millions are salvaged, requiring the most expert nautical and mechanical skill, and the utmost bravery.

The Sahara Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

Nowhere does there exist a people more savage and less known than the Black-Veiled Men of the Desert, the Touaregs and the Tubbus. A boy, who is half-American by birth, is captured by this tribe, his father is slain, and yet through his friendship with a marabout and with a water-finder he succeeds in bringing this hostile tribe into friendly relations with civilization.

The Gem-Hunters. Illustrated..... 1.75

Hunters of Ocean Depths. Illustrated 1.75

Oceanography is one of the most interesting of all studies, and its pursuit at times is intensely adventurous and exciting. In this book a bright American youth is the central figure in a scientific expedition conducted by experts with a thoroughly equipped vessel of the U. S. Navy.

The News-Hunters. Illustrated 1.75

This volume, with its bright American youth for a central figure, not only tells many of the exciting feats which have been wrought for the sake of the newspaper, not only traces the importance of the newspaper in the development of America, but it is also a masterly statement of newspaper life and newspaper training. The Author knows newspaper work thoroughly, from "cub-reporter" on a prairie sheet to "managing" on a big metropolitan daily, and has never lost his love for it.

Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has succeeded in compressing the whole diplomatic, political, economic, and military history of the war into an incisive, compact, and readable form.

The Book of Cowboys. Illustrated..... 2.00

Dr. Rolt-Wheeler has given a vivid and accurate picture of the days through which the Western States leaped from savagery to Statehood. (Books for Boys and Girls.)

Trowbridge understood boys and girls. He knew that boys and girls can be inspired to good, but cannot be driven. And yet not in any of his books is there preaching. He tells his stories in a clean straight-forward manner and boys and girls read out of them also that which Trowbridge did not write but clearly hid between the lines. No other writer has been shown such unflagging loyalty by American boys and girls. To-day, as for years past, his books are to be found in most homes, most libraries, and most bookstores.

In "Winter Sportcraft," we are taught how to prepare for all kinds of interesting sports where there are ice and snow, and also shown "Indoor Sportcraft," which applies to any climate. This book is away out of the commonplace and will appeal most particularly to bright lads who are tired of the usual things taught by trite descriptions.

Betty Barker. A Little Girl with a Big Heart. Illustrated in colors 1.50

Her friend Ada, whom she loves just as well when poor as when taken for her own by a wealthy lady, helps much in giving life to the story.

WELLS (R. F.).

With Caesar's Legions. Illustrated..... 1.50

One of the most remarkable series of military operations the world has ever seen is for the first time presented as a fascinating story of youthful adventure, with skilful emphasis on the great qualities of leadership which made Caesar the idol of his troops and the famous commander that he was. Not a dry line in it, even for those who never read "Caesar" in school. Any who have thought Roman history dull will never feel that way again after reading the fortunes of Titus and Julius Colenus.

On Land and Sea with Caesar. With Illustrations and Map. 1.50

Two Roman cousins, Titus and Julius Colenus, rejoin the Eagles and follow them through vast forests into unknown seas, and to the shores of Britain, where they take part in the conquest. The last stand of the Gauls is thrillingly portrayed, and there is a close view of many noted characters in Roman history. Such a book is a genuine contribution to education, with more than merely enough power in narration to hold the reader. For boys of high-school age, and of no less value to girl students.

212 SUMMER STREET, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Revised and enlarged Edition of 1926

AN INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY

By William McDougall

In the present revision and enlargement of his work Dr. McDougall has added to the American edition important chapters on THE SEX INSTINCT; THE INSTINCT OF LAUGHTER AND SOME MINOR TENDENCIES; and INSTINCTS OF MAN, IN THE LIGHT OF RECENT DISCUSSION.

This fundamental authority on purposive psychology in its relation to society and the social sciences has, since its first publication nearly twenty years ago, occupied the position of the leading text book on the subject. Cloth, 526 pages. Net, $2.00

NEW QUARTOS——$2 NET EACH——NEW QUARTOS

The volumes measure 6½ x 8½, are printed on specially made Flemish Book Paper, bound in boards with labels, and throughout represent a high class of book making.

CASANOVA. An Appreciation by Havelock Ellis with Excerpts from the Mémoires.

Of all existing comment on the "Mémoires" the Appreciation by Ellis, published in this volume, is the most informing, detailed and complete.

The excerpts from Casanova are complete in themselves, the first being his adventures in Rome (1743–44) at the Papal Court of Benedict XIV; the second his famous escape from the ducal prison in Venice (1756); the third his return to fortune in Paris at the Court of Louis XV.

LONDON NIGHTS. By Arthur Symons.

No single work so well represents the spirit of that famous period in English literature known as the eighteen nineties as does this volume of poems which first appeared in 1895.

Randolph Bartlett contributes an important introduction dealing with the literary aspects of the eighteen nineties.

MARIE: A BOOK OF LOVE. By Peter Nansen.

It is a fervid love idyll told by a man who having many mistresses adds Marie to their number as the incident of a moment. At first unconsciously, then against his will, a great and ideal love for Marie comes to him. From the many to the one he transfers a love tried in the fires of experience.

LAZARILLO OF TORMES. Translated by Mariano Joaquin Lorente.

From this, the first of the Spanish picaresque or vagabond tales, the novel as a recognized form of literature has been developed.

It was the literary sensation of its day and has never lost its power to interest and amuse.

The introduction by the translator is an unusually interesting and important contribution in the field of early Spanish literature.

THE LIFE AND PERSONALITY OF JEFFERSON DAVIS. By Morris Schaff, A biography of the late President of the Southern Confederacy by a former officer of the regular army whose works are notable for generous appreciation of the character of his opponents. Rosita Forbes' New Novel

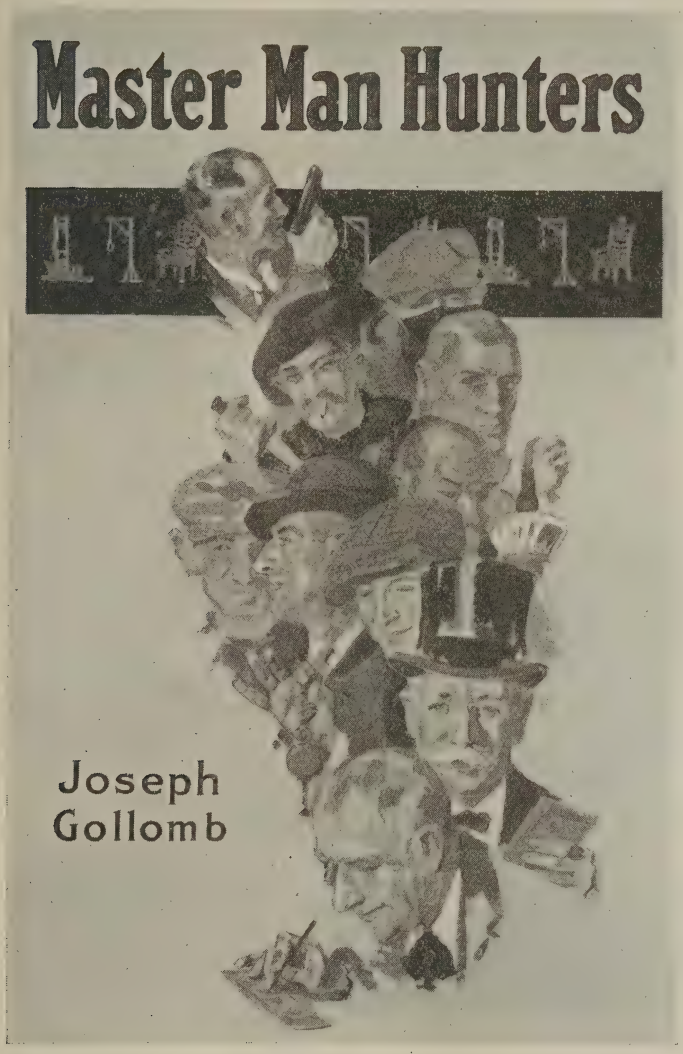
If the Gods Laugh

Rosita Forbes

Rosita Forbes knows the great world of adventure better than most novelists know their own back yard. The result is this great novel, irresistible and unforgetable.

IF THE GODS LAUGH is a striking novel in which three different loves are painted against a background of adventure and intrigue. To avoid an impressive marriage arranged for her by her grandmother, "the most formidable dowager in aristocratic Rome," Vittoria, half English and wholly impetuous, proposes to Colonel Navarro, the man who is the idol and terror of his country. They marry, understanding each other as little as their world understands them. The story develops in Africa, where the man faces the most perilous choice ever offered to a human being. Throughout, Vittoria's love endures with passionate fearlessness, flaming like a beacon on the hilltop of desire. Miss Forbes' book rises to a climax which is as daring and original as it is inevitable.

IF THE GODS LAUGH promises to be one of the season's leading books. It has color, adventure, an original love story and is written with a power that could only be achieved by one thoroughly at home in London, Paris, Rome, Africa; a familiar figure in the world's drawing rooms and jungles. ($2.00)



"Stranger than fiction" is this authentic record of crime and criminals that reveals the amazing methods used by scientific sleuths to trap the men and women who have defied the laws of God and man.

Sinister crime lurks in the pages of this record of MASTER MAN HUNTERS.

MASTER MAN HUNTERS shows the scientific methods of the super-sleuths. The significant thread woven by the scientific detective becomes the hemp that hangs the murderer. ($2.50)

MAD RAPTURE

By Elizabeth Irons Folsom

Author of "Free."

When Mrs. Folsom published her first novel FREE, the Literary Review of the New York Evening Post hailed her as "a distinct acquisition to the ranks of American novelists." And now her new novel MAD RAPTURE emphatically justifies this verdict.

MAD RAPTURE is the sympathetic and yet unsentimental study of the woman who lives only to enjoy the delights of the passing day. Camilla has no thought for tomorrow. Her one cry is, "I want it now." She discards home, husband and child. Then she is dazzled and terrified by the dawn of the terrible tomorrow with its reckoning and remorse. The career of Camilla Fararr as a woman of the world, a wife, and a mistress, makes a gripping, tense and dramatic novel which Mrs. Folsom has written in her direct, straightforward and distinctive style. THE TWO VIRGINITIES

Herbert S. Gorman

By Herbert S. Gorman

Author of
"Gold By Gold"
"James Joyce—His First Forty Years"

Mr. Gorman has a distinguished place as a novelist, poet, critic and biographer. His new novel THE TWO VIRGINITIES tells in brilliant, scintillating prose a daring and realistic story of aspiration.

LALAGE TRENT and John Gaul are two personalities who armor themselves against the enormous indecencies of life. They succeed in keeping unstained for each other their essential selves. Mr. Gorman presents the dramatic idea that a man and woman may be dragged through the mire of life and yet rise superior to their environment because of that clean inner urge, that secret virginity which nothing can touch. His strange and surprising conclusions are based upon sound reasoning and a philosophic ideal.

Mr. Gorman is a realist. His characters possess all the high qualities and flaws of passionate men and women. Their unique code and fearless conduct may seem to fly in the face of convention, yet their steadfast idealism is as admirable as it is unusual. Mr. Gorman's new novel indicates the trend of the modern school of creative fiction. ($2.00)

IN the back of Daniel Morrow's head was a chamber of memories. This secret store had to do with matters that could not have been productive of that necessary thing known as "a living." They were linked to verses that dealt with shadows, sunsets, winds touching tall grasses, melody of meadow larks . . . But Daniel had a blind father and a complaining mother to support as well as Mazie, his doll-faced cousin. And these matters came before all dreams—even before Cicely—before the fame that would lead him to her. A LADY OF NEW ORLEANS

By Edwina Levin MacDonald

THE charm and hospitality of New Orleans are traditional. One feels it when wandering along Canal Street, through the old French Quartier. This feeling of antiquity of culture and beauty has been captured in the pages of this novel. You see New Orleans dressed for the Mardi Gras, you are reminded of the rare beauty of its Creoles, of customs that are gracious and delightful; of a countryside as fair as any earth. It is through the eyes of Joan Beauseant, last of her line that we see this city of dreams, and it is with her that we leave it to wander across the world, for hers was the fault of loving too well.

You will appreciate the struggle she made to lift herself out of her environment—and you will understand what it meant to her to find that the man she loved was interested in her only as a scientist is interested in some odd specimen.
